

FROM THE AUTHOR OF WILD INFERNO AND WILD INDIGO

with the WILD Mystery Series
BERKLEY PRIME CRIME
www.SandiAult.com
www.WildSorrow.info

GET READY to TRACK DOWN

a CHILLING NEW WILD MYSTERY

MARCH, 2009

GO WILD . . . AGAIN

"If you enjoy the outdoors, the mysticism of Indian cultures, along with breakneck adventure, Ault's Wild series might just get your heart racing."

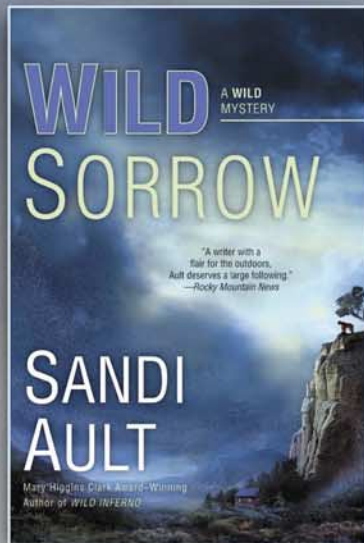

—The Charlotte Observer

 A MARCH 2009 PRIME CRIME HARDCOVER
ISBN: 978-0-425-22583-7
www.SandiAult.com

Wild Indigo and Wild Inferno introduced rough and ready Bureau of Land Management agent Jamaica Wild. Now, as the icy chill of winter looms, Jamaica stumbles across a frozen corpse and a hate crime with disturbing roots in the history of the Pueblo.

While tracking a wounded mountain lion onto a desolate canyon rim, Jamaica and her wolf, Mountain, come across an old Indian School, a place where children were "Americanized" after being taken from their homes. As a snowstorm sweeps the canyon, Jamaica is forced to take refuge in the abandoned school.

As she explores her impromptu haven, Jamaica discovers the desecrated body of an elderly Anglo woman, frozen on the floor. This discovery, combined with the obviously troubled history of the abandoned school, haunts Jamaica throughout the night with the sorrowful howling of the icy wind.

After the storm, the FBI take over the murder investigation as Jamaica continues to search for the wounded she-lion and her cubs. As the dead of winter settles on the mesa, arctic temperatures threaten the survival of the mountain lions—and Jamaica herself, as she is stalked and terrorized by the unidentified killer...

A HAUNTING NEW ADVENTURE

FROM MARY HIGGINS CLARK AWARD WINNER

SANDI AULT

and  BERKLEY PRIME CRIME

Author Sandi Ault
with her wolf, Tiwa
Photo by Tracy A. Kerns ©2008

"Ault uses her knowledge of the high-dry West to give us a look at Pueblo Indian culture."
—Tony Hillerman

"Jamaica Wild (and her wolf Mountain) are formidable new players in outdoor mystery fiction."
—C.J. Box

Track down these two in paperback

2 Starred Reviews each
(Library Journal and Publishers Weekly)
AND THE MARY HIGGINS CLARK AWARD FOR WILD INDIGO

PRAISE FOR WILD INFERNO:

"The fiery descriptions of the blaze's terrifying power are worth the price of admission, but Ault also keeps the pages turning...A writer with a flair for the outdoors, Ault deserves a large following."
—Rocky Mountain News

"The vivacious Ault knows whereof she writes in Wild Inferno...Where Ault excels is in developing a suspenseful, action-filled mystery on rugged Southwest terrain."
— New Mexico Magazine

PRAISE FOR WILD INDIGO:

"[A] striking debut...Scenes of the high, dry, glittering landscape are as clean as sun-bleached bone, and there are thrills galore."
—The New York Times Book Review

"Crackles with life and novelty."
—The Washington Post

